

THE PHOENIX HERALD.

SEMI-WEEKLY EDITION.

GOSPER & MCCLINTOCK - Proprietors.

Wednesday, March 5, 1879.

With an addition of $150,000 to our debt, county warrants will be very cheap.

Should Congress legalize the railroad subsidy bill, our Board of Supervisors have either to sign the bonds, resign, or go to jail—that's what Gray's bill provides.

Prudent, persistent advertising never fails to pay cent per cent on the investment, whether the outlay be in tens, or hundreds, or thousands of dollars. The most prosperous business men in the world have attested this truth.

OLIVER LOGAN writes to the Cincinnati Enquirer that he said to General Grant while he was recently in England: "Are you going to be the next president of the United States, General?" "No, I am not," he replied. Then, after a pause, he added, "But I'm going to be their most independent citizen."

LOUIS WEIN, the only Jew in the North Carolina penitentiary, has been pardoned out by Governor Vance, who endorsed the following on the paper: "I take pleasure in saying that I sign the pardon in full recognition of the good and law abiding character of our Jewish citizens, this being the first serious case ever brought to my notice on the part of any of that people."

The census bill as it passed the House, provides that the enumeration shall commence on the first Monday in June, and the returns shall be forwarded to supervisors on or before the first of July, 1880; and in any city having over 10,000 inhabitants the enumeration shall be taken within two weeks from the first Monday in June. The president, by and with the consent of the senate, is to have the appointment of the supervisors of the census, whose number is limited to 150, and who are to receive a compensation of $500 each.

At the present rate of construction the Southern Pacific Railroad will reach Maricopa Wells in about six weeks, and instead of hauling for the summer, as is generally supposed, many people in Phoenix are of the opinion that work will be continued northward, on Gray's line, to a point at the base of the Bradshaw mountains, and in the vicinity of Gilbert. For three making Phoenix a way station, the taxpayers of Maricopa county, (the larger portion of whom reside in this section) are called upon to pay an interest of $15,000 per year, or an amount about equal to our entire revenue. The road constructed as above mentioned would be of great benefit to Prescott while we the losers would foot the bill. Mr. Gray the father of this bill, makes the statement that it is only intended to construct the line to Phoenix making this the great teaming center for all eastern and northern Arizona. Should such be the case we doubt very much if the benefits derived would justify the increased taxation. A clause should have been inserted in the bill giving the taxpayers the right to say whether we are in a condition to be saddled with such an enormous debt. With the Southern Pacific Railroad completed to Maricopa, and a good and direct road between that point and Phoenix, we will be placed in close enough connection with the outside world for some time to come.

PHOENIX.

Translated from the Swedish.

In Paradise, under the Tree of Wisdom, grew a hedge of roses; here, in the first rose, a bird was born. His flight was like that of light; his color was beautiful, and his song glorious. But when Eve broke of the Tree of Wisdom—when she and Adam were driven from the garden of Paradise, a spark from the flaming sword of the Angel of Punishment fell into the nest and burnt it. The bird died in the flames; but from the red egg there grew a new bird, Phoenix.

It is an old tradition that Phoenix lives in Arabia, and every hundred years burns himself and his nest; while, from the red egg, flies a new bird, the only Phoenix in the world.

The bird hovers around us, swift as light, of beautiful color, and with a glorious voice. When the mother sits by her baby's cradle, he is near the pillow and beats with his wings a crown of glory around the child's head. He flies through the cottage where content reigns and brings sunshine with him. But the bird Phoenix is not alone Arabia's bird. He flutters in the northern light on Lapland's ice-plains; he flits about among the yellow flowers in Greenland's short summers. Under Fahlun's copper cliffs, in England's coal mines, he flies in the shape of a moth over the psalter in the hands of the pious workman. He sails on a lotus-leaf down the Ganges' holy waters, and the Hindoo girl's eye glistens when she sees him.

The bird Phoenix! Do you not know him? The Bird of Paradise, song's holy swan! On the chariot of Theophrastus he sat as a cawing raven, and beat his black wings; over the Icelandic singer's harp glided the swan's red, ringing beak; like Odin's raven, he was perched on Shakespeare's shoulder and whispered "Immortality!" during the concert, he flew through Wartburg's hall of knights. He sang for you the Marseillaise, and you kissed the feather that dropped from his wing.

Bird of Paradise! renewed every hundredth year, fed in flames, dying in flames, thy image made in gold hangs in the halls of the rich; whilst thou often roamest, lost and alone, one myth only, the Phoenix of Arabia. In Paradise, when thou wert born in the first rose, under the Tree of Wisdom, our Father kissed thee, and gave thee thy right name.—Poetry.

GOVERNOR ROBERTS of Texas, who makes a great show of simplicity, wears homespun clothes made at home. Nevertheless his last message, read to the state legislature a days ago, filled thirty columns in the type.
